Remembrance Sunday

12th November 2017

Welcome to Bromley Temple, a fellowship of salvationists and friends all seeking to know Jesus and to make Jesus known.

Today is Remembrance Sunday, and the Band will once again be taking part in the services at the Parish Church and Cenotaph. Here at the corps we will be looking this morning at the Book of Lamentations and Psalm 139, as we reflect on the happenings of the two great world wars of the 20th century, and also more recent world events.

This evening, Majors Polis and Maria Pantelidis will be leading our meeting. They will be sharing with us their recent experiences in Athens and the Army's work with refugees fleeing the war zones of the Middle East and Africa.

In the midst of the darkness of the days and events we will be remembering, we hold on to our key verse for this year:
'He (Jesus) is before all things, and in him all things hold together.'

God is still on the Throne!

WAR AND PEACE

The war is over, peace declared,
The troops are coming home
And hatred of an enemy
Must now become unknown;
The years of fighting for a cause
Are ended, bar the claims
When those on either side recall
The hell for yards of gains;
Returning soldiers, scarred for life
By sights no-one should see,
Must now adjust to civvy street
With equal bravery;
Their children they had longed to see,
When on the battlefield,
Are grown themselves into their teens,
Affection yet concealed;
The wives and sweethearts who have held
Their loved ones in their prayers,
Must learn afresh the wisest ways
Of sharing daily cares;
For some that task is not for them
For they have only grief,
Bereavement is not eased by words
No medal brings relief;
No war is won unless the peace
Is guaranteed to last,
And safeguards are agreed by all
Not to repeat the past;
Brave soldiers and their families
Have paid the price of war,
The politicians task must be
That price not to ignore,
But to pursue with diligence
The ways that keep the peace,
Ensuring those who would wage war
Their warring ways will cease;
It is the reason we should pray
When plans some would assail
And in the corridors of power
God's counsel will prevail.
